New York Yacht Club Will Revive Its Cruise as Finishing Touch to Epochal 1921 Season Racing Boats Crowd Yards Along Atlantic

Amateur Windjammers Are Thrilled Time and Again by Events' Announcement

By Jack Lawrence

With the yacht yards along the Atto be entered in the trans-Atlantic race bert of Belgium, many of them coming here from foreign shores to be tuned summer of 1921 in yachting history came from the New York Yacht Club the annual club cruise was to be resumed this year after a lapse of four

This news, which tended to send a thril through the realms of amateur wind jammers, followed the announcement that races will be sailed off Newport next summer for the Astor trophy dian Harbor Yacht Club, of Greenwich, had received challenges for a series of accs for the Manhasset Bay Challenge App, one coming from the Corinthian acht Club of Marblehead and the second from the Boston Yacht Club.

This trophy is for yachts of the Class P type, thirty-one rating. Followers of the game will recall that the Mahma, owned by Addison G. Hanan, egarded as the most skillful of Ameryca's amateur skippers, and Commodore V. H. Childs have twice successfully efended the cup.

ica's amateur skippers, and Commodors W. H. Childs have twice successfully defended the cup.

Valiant May Face Starter

Last year the Nahma raced against the Wasaka, and in a strong blow off Greenwich the latter was dismasted. The yachts to figure in this local classic for 1921 have not yet been identified, but local yachtsmen yesterday were of the opinion that the Valiant will go to the line under the colors of the Corinthian Yacht Club, while the Wasaka will again represent the Boston Yacht Club. The announcement that the New York Yacht Club is to resume its annual cruise for the first time since 1916 was taken by salt water sharps as a sure indication that the sport will this summer return to its normal place in the scheme of midsummer fixtures. It was regarded also as an indication that yachting is again to occupy its position of importance in the world of sport.

The last cruise, the picturesque Yacht Club were suspended in 1916 when it became apparent that the United States was to become involved in the war and that most of the larger vessels taking part in the event would be called into the naval branch of the service.

In the last cruise, the picturesque In the last cruise, the picturesque.

Morgan and others of his staff felt that the event would interfere with the handling of the international contest between Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger and the American defender of the America's Cup. For this reason it was decided to call off the cruise.

An interesting phase of the resumption of this historic feature in the program of the greatest of all yacht clubs in the United States is that it was estimated yesterday by a number of experts that the cost of operating a privately owned yacht, which reached a maximum increase of something like 300 per cent in 1918, has now fallen to little more than 33 per cent above what it was in that year. This has had a great deal to do with the revival of interest in the event.

Following the meeting at the New York Yacht Club on Friday night, at which it was definitely decided to hold the cruise again this year, there were numerous announcements made by members of well known yachts to be started. If the spirit which was shown at the meeting holds good the 1921 cruise will take oldtimes rollocking back to pre-war days.

Big Field Seems Assured

Big Field Seems Assured

There is every indication to-day that there will be as many vessels sem away in the proposed cruise as there were five or six years ago. Many yachts are to be put into commission and prominent among these will be large number of moderate sized racing craft and cruisers.

The ports of call for the cruise have not been announced, but there will be

The ports of call for the cruise have not been announced, but there will be the usual races from port to port and the final contests for the Astor and King's cups off Newport, which will probably be the crowning event of the social season at that resort.

At Robert Jacob's yacht basin, at City Island, yesterday, it was said that many yachts were being made ready for service, and while several of them are tentative starters in the big overseas race for the King Albert cup, Mr. Jacob said that he was not at liberty to say which they were.

The Tribune was informed last night that no official entries in the trans-Atlantic contest would be announced this month, due to the fact that the committee in charge of arrangements, of which Baron de Cartier, Belgian Ambassador to the United States, is the head, has not been able to get together in its entirety.

There is every indication that the entries, which, according to information available yesterday, will represent every maritime nation of any consequence, will be announced during the first week in April.

In the last cruise, the picturesque features of which had been somewhat dimmed by the conflict in Europe, was salled under the command of Commodore George F. Baker, then senior flag officer of the New York Yacht Club.

Cup Race Usurped Season

In 1919 the cruise was abandoned because most of the big yachts had not been reconditioned after being returned from government service and because of the exceedingly high cost of putting them in commission. At that time it was figured that the cost of operating a yacht had trebled over that of three years previous.

Last summer it was generally agreed among yachtsmen that the defense of the America's Cup, with the preliminary elimination trials between the Resolute and Vanitie, would occupy the major portion of the season, which turned out to be true.

There was a feeling last summer among certain members of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. He took the event with a card of ninety-five out of a possible 100 targets. The high handicap prize went to E. H. Lochitelli, after the usual shoot off. A high wind made the conditions difficult. Still the scores were excellent and there were more than the usual number of straight strings.

J. F. Connors was the winner of the Travers Island Cup. The weekly leg on the Buermeyer Cup went to Dr. G. H. Martin, with a score of forty-nine out of a possible fifty targets. A scratch special went to H. Sullivan. There also was a handicap special, which fell to J. H. Finch. A leg on the Distance Cup was won by G. J. Corbett. A leg on the doubles went to E. R. DeWolfe, with fifteen pairs.
